

Stéfanie Bolduc's Business School student experience

Transcript

“My name is Stéfanie Bolduc and I studied a Master’s in Strategic Marketing.

I came to Greenwich as a mature student so I was quite nervous coming in but I was really welcomed; I met people from all over the world in my programme and so got to learn not only have my education but almost a world education meeting people from all over, which was really really great.

I found the Employability Office really useful. I got an internship through them for a local business which has really allowed me to put my education and to get hands on experience and they were really supportive by updating my CV and cover letter so I could be put forward for this role and get the experience.

I am doing an internship with a company called CIS Security, they are a man guarding security company so I have come on and am working with the Director of Sales and Marketing.

I would definitely recommend doing an internship. I think it will help me in the future because I have had projects to work on and all those projects had deliverables that I now have for my portfolio and it’s just that time where you can learn as much as you want and take away everything from it.

Now that I’ve graduated I’m ready to embark on my career. I think coming out of my internship I have so much to add for my portfolio, winning an award with the university; I think my CV looks exceptional now and I am just ready to embark on my career and I feel really positive about it.”
