

TRADE UNIONS AND JNCS

The University of Greenwich recognises four trade unions for the purposes of collective bargaining. The University is committed to working closely with its recognised trade unions and recognises the benefit of workers being represented by one of the recognised Trade Unions.

The University has a Joint Negotiating Committee (JNC) comprising Management and Trade Union representatives that normally meets once every term to discuss issues of mutual interest.

Contact details and further information on each union can be found below:

GMB

The GMB is a campaigning trade union focused on protecting members interests in the workplaces. It is one of the country's biggest unions and has a very strong membership in the world of education support staff. University of Greenwich members are part of the South London Universities Branch.
